

Contents

Acknowledgments	11
CHAPTER 1 — Introduction: “Do Something Constructive!”	13
Introduction. Purpose. The need for constructive activities.
CHAPTER 2 — The Need for Nature	19
The need for the spiritual. Seeking the manifestation of God. Experiencing the raw manifestation of God’s creation in nature. The nature of nature. The contemporary unrealistic view of nature. Disturbing trends resulting from the unrealistic conception of nature. Experiencing the Trinity.
CHAPTER 3 — In the Beginning	27
Childhood memories and the initial attraction to the outdoors. The desire to get to know God. Friendship with God. Conceptions of God based on the experience of one’s parents. The relationship between Jesus and God the Father. Imitating the true love of Jesus. Our relationship with God.
CHAPTER 4 — River Rats	35
Adolescence and the outdoors. River fishing. Developing outdoor skills. Fishing disaster story. Getting angry with God. Dealing with doubt, despair, and suffering. Carrying our crosses.
CHAPTER 5 — Trout Fishing Revelation	49
Stereotypical impressions of trout fishing. First trout fishing trip. The addictive beauty of the trout fishing experience. Trout fishing as a revelation of the glory of God. Advanced trout fishing education and experience. The quest for trophy fish. Battling and losing the fish of a lifetime.

CHAPTER 6 — Fishing with a Vengeance 61

Bitterness of defeat. Desire for vindication. Trophy trout overdrive. Trophy tactics. Success. Dissatisfaction and the selfish desire for more. The cost of personal satisfaction.

CHAPTER 7 — The Truth of it All 71

The three phases of development for the outdoorsman are mirrored in life. The positives and negatives of these phases. The “get-something phase.” The search for truth. The “trophy phase.” The emptiness of our “trophy” pursuits in life. The “spiritual/philosophical phase.” Our vocation in life.

CHAPTER 8 — The Sacred Hunt 83

The lure of autumn. Childhood hunting memories. The paradox of hunting: something must die for something else to live. The multilevel fulfillment of hunting. The reality and necessity of killing. Basic human biology: omnivores are designed to eat meat. Hunting as respectful, dignified, and sacred harvesting of healthy, high-quality meat. Taking an active role in the food chain. Importance of ensuring a quick and clean kill. Why hunters are happy after they kill an animal. Hunting fosters a deep connectedness with the natural and the spiritual. The need for solitude, peace, and quiet: found abundantly in hunting. Prayer and the five forms of prayer.

CHAPTER 9 — Not So Fast 97

The disasters that result from being in a rush — while hunting and in life. The mental and physical phenomenon of the hunt. What we begin to notice and appreciate when we slow down. Learning to be thankful and to recognize our gifts and blessings.

CHAPTER 10 — The Spirituality of the Outdoors? 107

What is spirituality? The appeal of “spiritual” things that are devoid of true spiritual meaning. The spiritual vs. the religious.

The error of creating one's own "religion." True spirituality and the Holy Spirit. Discerning the work of the Spirit.

CHAPTER 11 — Monster of the Monastery 115

Story of discovering a very special monastery. Explanation of monasticism. Story of catching a 25-pound long nose gar on a fly rod while on retreat. How great things can happen when least expected. Being in the state of grace. Not being in the state of grace. The nature of sin. Aggressively avoiding things that lead to sin. The nature of the Christian.

CHAPTER 12 — Seasons of Change 127

The ever-changing seasonal pursuits of the outdoorsman. My introduction to deer hunting. Initial deer hunting experiences. Trials, tribulations, and constant lack of success in the deer woods. Getting my first deer. The phenomenon of unanswered prayers. Our changing needs-based relationship with God. The difference between what we want and what we need. More disastrous deer seasons. Being haunted by mistakes from the past. God's forgiveness.

CHAPTER 13 — Sweet Success 141

First successful bow hunt. Hunting with purified intentions. Big buck encounters. More successful hunts. My first big buck. The power of a positive attitude. Unfulfilled expectations and sin. Trusting in God. True freedom. Ultimate success.

CHAPTER 14 — Talking turkey 157

The majesty of the wild turkey. Turkey hunting hex. The death defying turkey hunting trip. Experience of being literally eyeball-to-eyeball with a wild turkey. Surrendering to the will of God. The question of God's will. The reality of the imperfection of life on earth. The role of commitment. Keeping holy the Sabbath day. Thankfulness for the gift of salvation.

CHAPTER 15 — Turkey Temptation 173

The most unbelievable turkey hunting story ever told. The nature of temptation. Temptation as test. Sexual temptation and sexual sin. Sex, true love, and the sacrament of matrimony. The Church's teaching on sexual morality. Artificial contraception and natural family planning. The abortion issue. Conclusion.

CHAPTER 16 — The Eternal Trout Stream 191

A heavenly day of winter trout fishing. Thoughts on eternity. The phenomenon of death. The power of hope. The devastation of doubt. The journey of life.

CHAPTER 17 — Bass Fishing Bonanza 207

The nature and appeal of the largemouth bass. The importance of perseverance. The sin of omission. Forgiveness. Contrasting our sins with others. The sanctification of our lives.